Equally Safe: Scotland's strategy for preventing and eradicating violence against women and girls

SECTION

01

Fund introduction and policy context

Equally Safe is Scotland's strategy to prevent and eradicate violence against women and girls.

Developed by the Scottish Government and COSLA, in association with a wide range of partners, Equally Safe sets out a vision of a strong and flourishing Scotland where all individuals are equally safe and respected, and where women and girls live free from all forms of violence and abuse – and the attitudes that help perpetuate it.

Delivering Equally Safe is the name of the Scottish Government funding programme to support third sector organisations and public bodies contribute to the objectives, priorities, and outcomes of the Equally Safe strategy. It combines various funding streams, including the Equally Safe (Violence Against Women and Girls) and Rape Crisis Specific fund.

The Delivering Equally Safe (DES) Fund application process was paused due to the impact of the Coronavirus (Covid-19) pandemic. The Delivering Equally Safe Fund was developed following a review of the funding from the Equality and Human Rights Division. The aim is to create a simpler and cohesive method for organisations to access funding. The review enabled future funding to be more closely aligned to the commitments of Equally Safe and the refreshed National Performance Framework. We have strengthened the support for partnership working and the trialling and testing of new approaches. Organisations are now able to submit an additional application for a partnership proposal.

Following the pause due to the impact of Coronavirus pandemic, the fund will now open to applications from 7 December 2020 and all applications are due by midday on 31 March 2021.

Funding is available for up to three years for work delivered from October 2021 through to September 2024.

The Delivering Equally Safe Fund is managed by Inspiring Scotland.

Equally Safe

Aim: To work collaboratively with key partners in the public, private and third sectors to prevent and eradicate all forms of violence against women and girls.

No woman or girl in Scotland should be subjected to violence or abuse of any kind (physical, emotional, sexual or psychological) and no child or young person should experience gender-based violence or have to live with the impact of it.

The Scottish Government's aim is to work collaboratively with key partners across all sectors to prevent and eradicate all forms of violence against women and girls. We are clear that there are no quick fixes to this deep-rooted problem. It requires significant economic, social, and cultural change over the long term, that calls for the sustained commitment not just from partners but from individuals and communities too.

Equally Safe's definition of violence against women and girls encompasses (but is not limited to):

- physical, sexual, and psychological violence occurring in the family (including children and young people), within the general community or in institutions, including domestic abuse, rape, and incest
- sexual harassment, bullying and intimidation in any public or private space, including work
- commercial sexual exploitation, including prostitution, lap dancing, stripping, pornography and trafficking
- child sexual abuse, including familial sexual abuse, child sexual exploitation and online abuse
- so called 'honour based' violence, including dowry related violence, female genital mutilation, forced and child marriages, and 'honour' crimes

Our approach is rooted in the United Nation's understanding of violence against women and girls which provides a gendered analysis of the issue.¹ Tackling violence against women helps to support the Scottish Government's ambitions to advance equality and protect and uphold fundamental human rights, as defined in domestic law and international treaties.

Equally Safe recognises that along with their gender, women and girls have other protected characteristics that increases their level of risk of experiencing violence and abuse. The drivers for this are often continuing prejudice and the structural barriers in society which cause inequality. Other factors include age, looked after status (current and former), financial dependence, experience of child abuse and neglect, poverty, disability, homelessness, insecure immigration status and ethnicity.

As well as adult women, girls and young women are at risk of violence and abuse precisely because they are female, and the definition we have adopted explicitly includes children of all genders as subject to harm through violence. A gendered analysis does not exclude men, but rather recognises that women and girls are disproportionately affected by violence that they experience because they are women and girls. Many men and boys are victims of violence and abuse.

Equally Safe prioritises primary prevention, which focuses on changing behaviour, building the knowledge and skills of individuals, and ultimately delivering a progressive shift in the structural, cultural, and societal contexts in which violence occurs. This is complemented by our ambitions in achieving gender equality and eradicating poverty, which will make a critical contribution to ultimately preventing and eradicating violence against women and girls for good.

We must also be realistic and recognise that women and girls are at risk of continuing to experience gender-based violence in all its forms for some time to come. Children and young people will also continue to be affected by violence and the consequences of witnessing and experiencing violence. Early intervention and the provision of effective mainstream and specialist services remain fundamentally important. The provision of high-quality services for those at risk continue to be essential – we must ensure that women and girls are kept safe and that victims and survivors have the support they need to recover. However, we are clear that, by working towards ultimately eradicating the problem altogether we can deliver better outcomes. This is better for the individuals and communities we help keep safe from harm, and for society as women and men enjoy greater equality.

1. This analysis firmly places different forms of violence against women within the gendered reality of men's and women's lives, what it means to be a man and women in our society and the status and privileges afforded.

Covid-19

The pandemic, and the economic and social shocks it has generated, has increased the risk to victims and survivors and generated significant challenges for organisations working in this field. Women and children may be at greater risk of harm during periods of restriction through being constrained in their ability to leave their homes and/or seek new accommodation, and children experiencing domestic abuse may be constrained in terms of the 'safe spaces' (usually school or early years settings) they can access, and they may therefore suffer increased trauma. Frontline services have faced challenges in supporting women and children who have been experiencing domestic abuse, and anyone experiencing gender-based violence (including sexual violence), due to restrictions and the need to work remotely. There are also greater challenges in holding perpetrators to account due to increased reluctance to report incidents, changes in court business and pressures upon services.

National context

Preventing and eradicating violence against women and girls is essential to achieving the Scottish Government's overarching purpose as set out in the National Performance Framework.

National Performance Framework Purpose

We aim to:

- create a more successful country
- give opportunities to all people living in Scotland
- increase the wellbeing of people living in Scotland
- create sustainable and inclusive growth
- reduce inequalities and give equal importance to economic, environmental and social progress

Equally Safe and the work supported through the Delivering Equally Safe Fund will also contribute to national outcomes:

We respect, protect and fulfil human rights and live free from discrimination

We grow up loved, safe and respected so that we realise our full potential

We live in communities that are inclusive, empowered, resilient and safe

We tackle poverty by sharing opportunities, wealth and power more equally

We are healthy and active

This is further underpinned by the values underpinning the National Performance Framework, namely:

“We are a society which treats all our people with kindness, dignity and compassion, respects the rule of law and acts in an open and transparent way.”

Whatever form it takes,
violence against women and girls can have both an immediate and long-lasting impact on the women, children and young people
directly involved ...

Equally Safe: Scotland's strategy for preventing and eradicating violence against women and girls

SECTION 02 | Information for applicants

What is the purpose of the Delivering Equally Safe Fund?

The purpose of the Fund is to support delivery of the objectives of the Equally Safe strategy. Applicants will need to demonstrate how the work they are doing, or propose to do, contributes to Equally Safe objectives and priorities.

Equally Safe: priorities and objectives

Priority 1

Scottish society embraces equality and mutual respect, and rejects all forms of violence against women and girls

Objectives:

- Positive gender roles are promoted
- People enjoy healthy, positive relationships and children develop an understanding of safe, healthy, and positive relationships from an early age
- Individuals and communities recognise and challenge violent and abusive behaviour

Priority 2

Women and girls thrive as equal citizens – socially, culturally, economically, and politically

Objectives:

- Women and girls are safe, respected, and equal in our communities
- Women and men have equal access to power and resources
- Women, children, and young people's voices are heard, and their rights respected

Priority 3

Interventions are early and effective, preventing violence and maximising the safety and wellbeing of women, children, and young people

Objectives

- Justice responses are robust, swift, consistent, and coordinated
- Women, children, and young people access relevant, effective and integrated services
- Service providers competently identify violence against women and girls, and respond effectively to women, children and young people affected

Priority 4

Men desist from all forms of violence against women and girls, and perpetrators of such violence receive a robust and effective response

Objectives

- Men who carry out violence against women and girls are identified early and held to account by the justice system
- Men who carry out violence against women and girls change their behaviour, and are supported to do so
- Relevant links are made between the experience of women, children, and young people in the criminal and civil justice systems

What are the intended outcomes?

Equally Safe is a highly ambitious strategy. It has priorities for women, girls and children affected by violence, perpetrators of violence against women, and society as a whole.

The logic model below is adapted from the Equally Safe Quality Standards and Performance Framework. It is a diagram of the change or difference that needs to happen (outcomes) to deliver Equally Safe priorities.

As key partners, organisations supported through Delivering Equally Safe will also contribute to these outcomes.

Applicants will need to demonstrate how the activity they are doing, or propose doing, results in outcomes for individuals and community at large that link to Equally Safe outcomes as well as the outcomes and values expressed in the National Performance Framework (see page 6).

The activity carried out by the organisations funded through the Equally Safe Fund will be a key contributor towards the delivery of these outcomes.

Who can apply?

Applications are welcomed from organisations that have a focus on tackling violence against women and girls in Scotland.

All applicants should be able to articulate the work of their organisation in the context of the objectives, priorities, and outcomes of the Equally Safe strategy and the National Performance Framework.

To be eligible for funding, applicant organisations will also need to demonstrate that they have good governance and a commitment to equality and diversity.

The legal structure of applicant organisations may be

- incorporated² third sector organisations
- community interest companies or
- public bodies (including local authorities)

Third sector organisations should be registered with the Scottish Charity Regulator (OSCR).

Community Interest Companies should have a strong Board of at least three Directors, with regular review of membership and clear processes for managing any potential conflict between the personal interests of the directors and the interest of the CIC.

All applicants are asked to submit:

1. A copy of their Memorandum and Articles or Constitution, signed and dated
2. Most recent independently examined or audited accounts, or verified statement of income and expenditure (if a new organisation, most recent bank statement)
3. A copy of their Equality and Diversity Policy
4. A copy of their Child Protection/Vulnerable Adult Policy if the application involves working with children, young people, or vulnerable adults
5. A copy of their LGBTI Inclusion Plan

The documents and application will be reviewed to ensure eligibility by:

Criteria	Good governance
Demonstrated by:	<ul style="list-style-type: none">○ Effective and accountable governance, management and financial systems and structures○ How service users can input into service development
Through a review of:	<ul style="list-style-type: none">○ Submitted Memorandum and Articles or Constitution○ Submitted independently examined or audited accounts, or verified statement of income and expenditure○ Submitted Child Protection/Vulnerable Adult Policy (if applicable)○ Application questions
Criteria	Commitment to equality and diversity
Demonstrated by:	<ul style="list-style-type: none">○ A demonstrable commitment to equality and diversity
Through a review of:	<ul style="list-style-type: none">○ Submitted Equality and Diversity Policy○ Submitted LGBTI Inclusion Plan○ Application questions

2. Incorporation refers to the legal structure of your organisation and is quite separate from charitable status. Voluntary organisations can either be incorporated or unincorporated. To be eligible for the DESF you must be incorporated which means the legal status of the organisation is either a Scottish Charitable Incorporated Organisation (SCIO) or a Company Limited by Guarantee, or other incorporated bodies.

See this fact-sheet from the Scottish Charity Regulator and the SCVO guidance - <https://www.oscr.org.uk/media/2506/legal-forms-factsheet.pdf> and <https://scvo.org.uk/support/setting-up-a-charity/decide-on-structure>

How long is the funding for?

This round of Delivering Equally Safe will run for three years until the end of September 2024.

Year 1: October 2021–September 2022

Year 2: October 2022–September 2023

Year 3: October 2023–September 2024

To allow for forward planning, organisations can submit applications now for work that does not commence until Year two or Year three of this funding round. If an application for funding from Year two or three is successful, capacity building support will be offered in year one and/or year two to ensure that any adjustments can be made to the work delivered if circumstances change between funding approval and the start date for work to commence.

How much funding is available?

The Delivering Equally Safe Fund will distribute up to £13 million pounds per year.³ Once funding is committed in 2021, it is not anticipated that the overall budget for this fund will increase.

There is no minimum or maximum level of funding for which applicants can apply.

However, there is a finite amount of funding available, and applicants should take this into account when they are developing their application. It is not anticipated that the fund will re-open again until 2024.

It is anticipated that annual grants will range between £10,000 and over £1million per annum. Applicants are encouraged to be realistic in developing their application.

You should also be prepared for the possibility that (i) you may not receive the full amount you are seeking; and (ii) your application may not be successful, and plan accordingly.

Please note, all funding is subject to the Annual Spending Review and any grant offers will be indicative until the Annual Budget has been passed by the Scottish Parliament.

Funding will also be subject to satisfactory delivery and governance and may be reviewed if any concerns are raised by the Scottish Government Policy Officers, Inspiring Scotland, or organisations themselves.

What types of activity will be funded?

The Delivering Equally Safe Fund will resource organisations working nationally, locally and across Scotland to contribute to the priorities and objectives of Equally Safe.

Funded activity could focus on:

- primary, secondary, and tertiary prevention of violence
- early intervention for victim-survivors
- front-line service support
- driving attitudinal or behaviour change
- supporting policy development and practice
- any combination of these

We welcome innovative proposals that both build on areas of existing practice and suggest bold new avenues for exploration or develop the evidence base in relation to tackling violence against women and girls. (Further information on the priority areas of development we are interested in supporting is given on page 13).

We recognise that delivering systemic change takes time. We expect applications to build on existing good practice. We also welcome innovative approaches, where we would expect to see a clear rationale with supporting evidence for why this approach has been developed and/or should be tested.

³ Funding for future years (2022-23 and 2023-24) is dependent upon the Annual Spending Review and Scottish Budget.

What will funding pay for?

Organisations can submit either:

- One application which is specific to that organisation, covering core costs⁴, project costs or both.

And/or:

- One application in partnership with another eligible organisation (or eligible organisations), primarily focused on delivery of a project or programme of work, though core staffing costs to support partnership development are also eligible.

Organisations cannot submit multiple single applications, or multiple partnership applications with the same organisation as the lead.

Organisations can apply for core, project or both core and project costs⁵ within an application.

Core: You can apply for the true costs of maintaining and strengthening delivery or services, as they relate to the Equally Safe strategy. We want to understand the full cost as well as move away from organisations having to repackage existing work as different projects.

Project: We are also interested in new, innovative ideas that may include expansion of current work, or pilot new approaches. New pieces of work that are time-bound or are testing a different way of working will be considered for project funding.

Project: All applicants can apply for project support

This can include any costs to deliver time-bound, specific pieces of new work. For the purposes of this fund, any new work that is to be developed or new staff engaged should be considered as project costs.

When planning your project budget please be realistic about the time it will take to recruit any new staff or develop new ideas. Your budget should be phased accordingly.

In addition to the costs to deliver the service or project, applicants are encouraged to include (where relevant) wider costs of delivering work effectively. This may include, for example:

- costs for translators or translation materials
- access/IT and travel costs
- cost of living increments for staff members over the funding period
- volunteer expenses (travel, subsistence, publicity)
- costs associated with involving survivors in service or project design and evaluation

Core: Only third sector organisations can apply for core support

Different people mean different things by core funding. For this Fund we mean operating and essential running costs for maintaining a service that delivers to the Equally Safe strategy on an on-going basis.

This means we will consider costs such as:

- Existing management, administration, and delivery staff
- staff costs such as travel and training
- office costs (accommodation and supplies)
- overheads (heating, lighting, cleaning, insurance)
- communication and IT costs

Please do not include core costs that are already being met by existing income streams – e.g. through another grant or via membership income.

⁴. For third sector organisations only

⁵. We will provide support to you to help you confirm what is core and project costs. Follow @DESfund or register your interest via desenquiries@inspiringscotland.org to get details of application surgeries and webinars.

What areas of development are a priority?

Within the bid, applicants should recognise and have cognisance of the impacts and risks in relation to Covid-19 and indicate how this will be factored into forward planning over the lifetime of the fund.

We recognise that there is a wealth of experience and expertise from many different disciplines and backgrounds, and that this has been developed through many years and decades of effective hard work and collaboration by feminist workers and experts and through the voices and perspectives of survivors.

With this in mind, we are keen to see proposals (and particularly partnership proposals) that develop work, research, or practice on any of the topics within the following themes:

Theme	What
Developing holistic pathways	<ul style="list-style-type: none">○ Developing joined-up, person-centred, holistic pathways which recognise that an individual may experience multiple different types of gendered violence○ Developing holistic approaches/pathways to better meet the needs of individuals with complex needs
Deepening understanding of patterns of needs	<ul style="list-style-type: none">○ Conducting a needs-based assessment within an individual locality or cluster of targeted localities to inform a national approach
Broadening access	<ul style="list-style-type: none">○ Developing work focusing on how to meet the specific circumstances of remote/island communities○ Develop approaches which better support disabled women and/or children and address the specific barriers they may experience
Workforce wellbeing, capacity-building, and development	<ul style="list-style-type: none">○ Collaborative, multi-agency capability and capacity work, through training, guidance, awareness raising and/or other approaches○ Developing approaches to prevention work/interventions through the lens of public health○ Developing support systems to improve workforce capability and wellbeing, particularly around managing emotional demanding work which carries risks of vicarious trauma over sustained periods
Issue specific	<ul style="list-style-type: none">○ Supporting the effective implementation of the Female Genital Mutilation (Protection and Guidance) (Scotland) Act○ Work related to challenging or ending commercial sexual exploitation

What should applications demonstrate?

Successful applicants will demonstrate:

- Appropriate ethos and values: The proposed work is underpinned by a gendered analysis of violence against women and girls.
- Effective multi-agency working: The applicant organisation(s) is a member of their local multi-agency VAW Partnership, or actively engaged with the National Violence Against Women Network if not a local organisation. We do not want to fund duplicate work so it should be clear how your activity complements existing work being carried out at either national or local level by other agencies.
- Accessibility, Equality and Diversity: The application should clearly articulate how proposed work will reduce barriers to services and/or seek to address the needs of specific groups of women and children (e.g. those with other protected characteristics, those with complex needs, etc.).

The application should show applicants will support, engage, or advocate for women in a variety of circumstances, looking at protected characteristics and socio-economic disadvantage.

The proposed work must be demonstrably inclusive of lesbian, bisexual, trans and intersex (LBTI) women⁶.

Support for Partnership proposals

The success of realising the vision of Equally Safe is dependent upon organisations being able to work collaboratively to bring expertise, experience, relationships and trust in order to deliver better outcomes for women and girls, and for Scottish society as a whole.

We welcome joint applications for partnership work which have a separate application form. We are particularly interested in partnership projects which do one or more of the following:

- bring together organisations for the first time (or which formalises previously informal ways of working)
- where work is at a more significant scale than organisations have previously undertaken
- or the approach being delivered through the work is new or innovative

The lead organisation for a partnership application must be a third sector organisation, and a lead organisation can only submit one partnership bid.

Supporting partners can be listed on multiple applications if they are not the lead. We would however encourage any potential partners to think about their capacity to deliver across multiple bids and to combine bids where possible to avoid duplication.

Developing Partnership work

We recognise that successful partnership working takes time and investment on all sides, and whilst individuals are often key to making this happen, with the right frameworks in place, successful partnerships can endure even as individuals move on. Delivering Equally Safe therefore will support partnership approaches to projects or service delivery, which include up to 6–9 months of partnership development time (including supporting staffing costs) prior to direct delivery of the work taking place.

Partnership development time may allow organisations the opportunity to put in place memoranda of understanding or equivalent governance systems to ensure that the partnership can be sustained effectively once delivery commences. The duration of partnership development time will be dependent upon factors such as the strength of pre-existing working relationships, alignment between organisational strategies and priorities and the level of commitment invested by the senior leadership of each organisation. Additional factors, such as the locations of organisations (particularly in rural and/or island communities), may also be relevant.

Partnership proposals should include a rationale for the duration of partnership development time applied for (which can be revised if circumstances change). If successful in receiving funding, partners will work with Inspiring Scotland to confirm milestones within the partnership development time to ensure that project delivery timescales are feasible.

Guidance on responding to the partnership application form is included in Section 3 Application questions guidance.

⁶ The LBTI plan does not impact on the ability of organisations to utilise the single sex exceptions in the Equality Act where that is a proportionate approach to achieving a legitimate aim.

I believe changes can be made to end violence but it must go back to the roots of education and gender conditioning.

Process of allocating the Fund

Final allocations will be determined by the range and breadth of applications received and the overall amount of funding available, recognising that some work may deliver against multiple Equally Safe priorities and/or objectives, as well as the need to balance investment across the different priorities.

Scottish Ministers will make all final decisions on what proposals to fund. To help them with their decisions, Inspiring Scotland will support the Scottish Government through an assessment process which includes scoring of all applications and a review of long and short-listed applications by an expert(s) by experience advisory group.

The process is as follows:

Application

- The application will provide information on main activities, governance, and financial position of applicant organisation, with information on how proposed work fits the priorities and outcomes of Equally Safe

Assessment

- All applications will be assessed by at least two Assessors independently
- All applications will be scored, and an average score taken. Scored questions are detailed from page 18 with Section B questions having the highest weighting

Clinical overview

- All shortlisted applicants delivering counselling or psychological support [only] will have a clinical overview of question 3.4

Experts by experience advisory forum

- Section B of all long-listed applicants will be scored and discussed by an advisory forum of people with experience of delivering or being a recipient of violence against women and girls services. They will provide feedback to be considered by the recommendations panel

Ministerial Approval

- The final decision will rest with the Ministers responsible for this policy area

At any time during the process, Inspiring Scotland may support applicant(s) to refine their proposal – e.g. confirming key milestones in partnership applications

Our aim is to work collaboratively with key partners across all sectors to prevent and eradicate all forms of violence against women and girls.

Equally Safe: Scotland's strategy for preventing and eradicating violence against women and girls

Expectations of successful applicants

Organisations who are successful in gaining funding will be required to report on progress towards their outcomes every six months. The template for reporting will be made available when the grant letters are issued.

Inspiring Scotland will work with organisations who are successful in gaining funding to agree key indicators against stated outcomes and to measure impact.
